ARALUEN CULTURAL PRECINCT.

The Araluen Cultural Precinct provides a fascinating glimpse into the art, culture and heritage of Central Australia and into some of the local identities that helped develop the region. The Arts Centre is the focal point of the performing and visual art scene in Alice Springs. It incorporates a series of art galleries along with a professional theatre. In the Museum of Central Australia you can journey through the fascinating evolution of Central Australia from the 'Big Bang' through to the forming of ancient rocks containing the earliest traces of life and evidence of a great inland sea. The Strehlow Research Centre acts as a repository for material relating to the Arrernte people, their culture and traditions. Central Craft has a diverse range of local crafts including jewellery, pottery, weaving, printed silks and woodwork. The Central Australian Aviation Museum is located in two aircraft hangars. One is the original Connellan Airways hangar on the site of Alice Springs' first airstrip. The museum is also home to many other pieces of historical aircraft and aviation memorabilia. The Araluen Cultural Precinct is the home of a number of Aboriginal sacred sites and trees of significance. These are integral components of the 'Two Women Dreaming Track', which runs through the area. Aboriginal Cultural Arts Tours allows you to experience the Aboriginal view of the world and develop a deeper understanding of this ancient culture.
